

IRS investigating Lompoc Flight Service

Santa Barbara County was operating Lompoc Airport today in the wake of an investigation by the Internal Revenue Service that has effectively ended Lompoc Flight Service's seven-year operation.

County officials headed by Fourth District Supervisor Francis H. Beattie were on hand this morning as IRS field agents inventoried physical property at the airport. An official said the IRS had "attached" the airport facility because of the failure of Lompoc Flight Service to pay some $12,000 to $14,000 in withholding taxes.

An investigation was also underway into other aspects of the airport operation. Beattie declined to speculate on the possibility that investigators were looking for evidence of mismanagement by Lompoc Flight Service under leadership of the late William Riggs.

Beattie said the county acted yesterday to take over when it became apparent that the IRS attachment would prevent Lompoc Flight Service from fulfilling its contractual obligations for operation of the airport. Federal Aviation Agency regulations require that the airport facility continue to operate with all services for landings and takeoffs.

Today's actions came in the wake of a reported meeting in Santa Maria yesterday between the IRS and Patricia Riggs widow of Riggs and associate in the flight service corporation. Riggs died several weeks ago.

The IRS reportedly issued an ultimatum to Mrs. Riggs to come up with the $12,000 to $14,000 by 10 a.m. today or submit to the attachment of all the airport property. The hour of 10 a.m. came and went this morning without any visible sign that the IRS was doing anything except inventory the facility.

Mrs. Riggs could not be reached for comment. Her attorney, Jerry Brown of Santa Barbara reportedly told the Santa Barbara County Counsel that those in command of the flight service were prepared to enter bankruptcy proceedings.

The county owns both Lompoc and Santa Ynez Airports and has leased them to fixed base operators for the day to day operation. The county's Airport Commission serves as an advisory body to the Board of Supervisors, actual authority over the two facilities.

American Airlines admits illegal donations to Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox said today that American Airlines had voluntarily admitted it made illegal cash donations to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

George A. Spater, chairman of American Airlines said "cash contributions totalling $75,000" were solicited from the airline by Herbert Kalmbach, Nixon's personal lawyer.

Kalmbach said American was "among those from whom $100,000 was expected," Spater claimed.

Under federal law, corporate contributions to political campaigns are barred. "Some of the contributions came from corporate funds," Spater admitted.

"At my direction American officials made the payments of $75,000 in cash in five installments from November, 1971 through March 1972, of which the first four, totaling $20,000, came from non-corporate sources and the last $55,000, paid in March 1972, came from corporate sources."

The Nixon re-election committee is alleged to have received $1.7 million in nonreported cash contributions before the April 7, 1972 deadline when stricter campaign fund reporting laws went into effect.

Spater said he took full corporate responsibility for the decision to turn over the funds to the Committee to Re-Elect the President (CRP), but he called for reform of the campaign financing laws.

"Based on my knowledge and experience in the business community, I believe that such pressures have been regularly applied by campaign solicitors, and that contributions made by corporate officers and employees are directly or indirectly financed out of corporate funds to an extent that creates a significant national problem."

Under law, corporate officers and employees are allowed to give funds to political campaigns even though the corporation itself is barred.

"We need stronger campaign financing laws. The present laws are hypocritical," Spater said in a statement released by the airline.

Spater indicated that he felt he was under great pressure to contribute. "I knew Mr. Kalmbach to be both the President's personal counsel and counsel for our major competitor. I concluded that a substantial response was called for," he said.

American's direct competitor is United Airlines. "United Air Lines is totally unaware of any corporate contributions to any political organization or campaign fund," a spokesman said.

In another Watergate development, chief U. S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica granted limited immunity from prosecution for Gordon Strachan, former aide to ex-White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, and ordered Strachan to testify before the Senate Watergate committee.

GAO refers 'violations' to Justice Department

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators have referred to the Justice Department "apparent violations" of the law in the transfer of some of President Nixon's campaign funds to a Maryland group that organized a dinner honoring Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

The General Accounting Office (GAO), the investigatory arm of Congress, reported Thursday it had made the referral to Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson.

The GAO said it also had learned of another "apparent violation" — the acceptance by the "Salute to Ted Agnew Night Committee" of $47,600 in campaign contributions by corporations. Since 1925, corporations have been barred from making gifts to candidates for federal office.

In a statement, Agnew said he took "no part, direct or indirect, in the solicitation, collection or reporting" of funds by the Maryland committee. He said he did not know of the loan of Nixon committee funds until it was reported in the press. Agnew also pointed out that he was not a candidate for vice president at the time of the dinner last spring.

GAO officials undertook an investigation after Hugh W. Sloan Jr., the youthful former treasurer of the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President, told the Senate Watergate Committee of transferring $50,000 in cash to the salute committee.

Ticket sales were lagging and the committee wanted to make the dinner on May 19, 1972 look more successful, Sloan related.

The unreported transfers were illegal, the GAO said.

It particularly accused Blagden H. Wharton, treasurer of the salute committee, of "knowingly and willfully making a false, fictitious or fraudulent statement" to the GAO in listing 31 fictitious donors to account for the $50,000 and then "willfully subscribing under oath to material he believed to be untrue."

Wharton, a vice president of Maryland National Bank, was charged June 19 with four counts of violating Maryland state law.

As for the gifts from corporations, the salute committee argued before the GAO that its handling of them was proper.

Virgil Phelps reelected commission chairman

BY VAUGH PROCTOR
Staff Writer

The City of Lompoc Water Commission last night reelected Virgil Phelps chairman, recommended that the city proceed with all speed on construction of the Cypress Avenue water main, and cast an anxious eye at threats to the supply of chemicals for the water treatment plant.

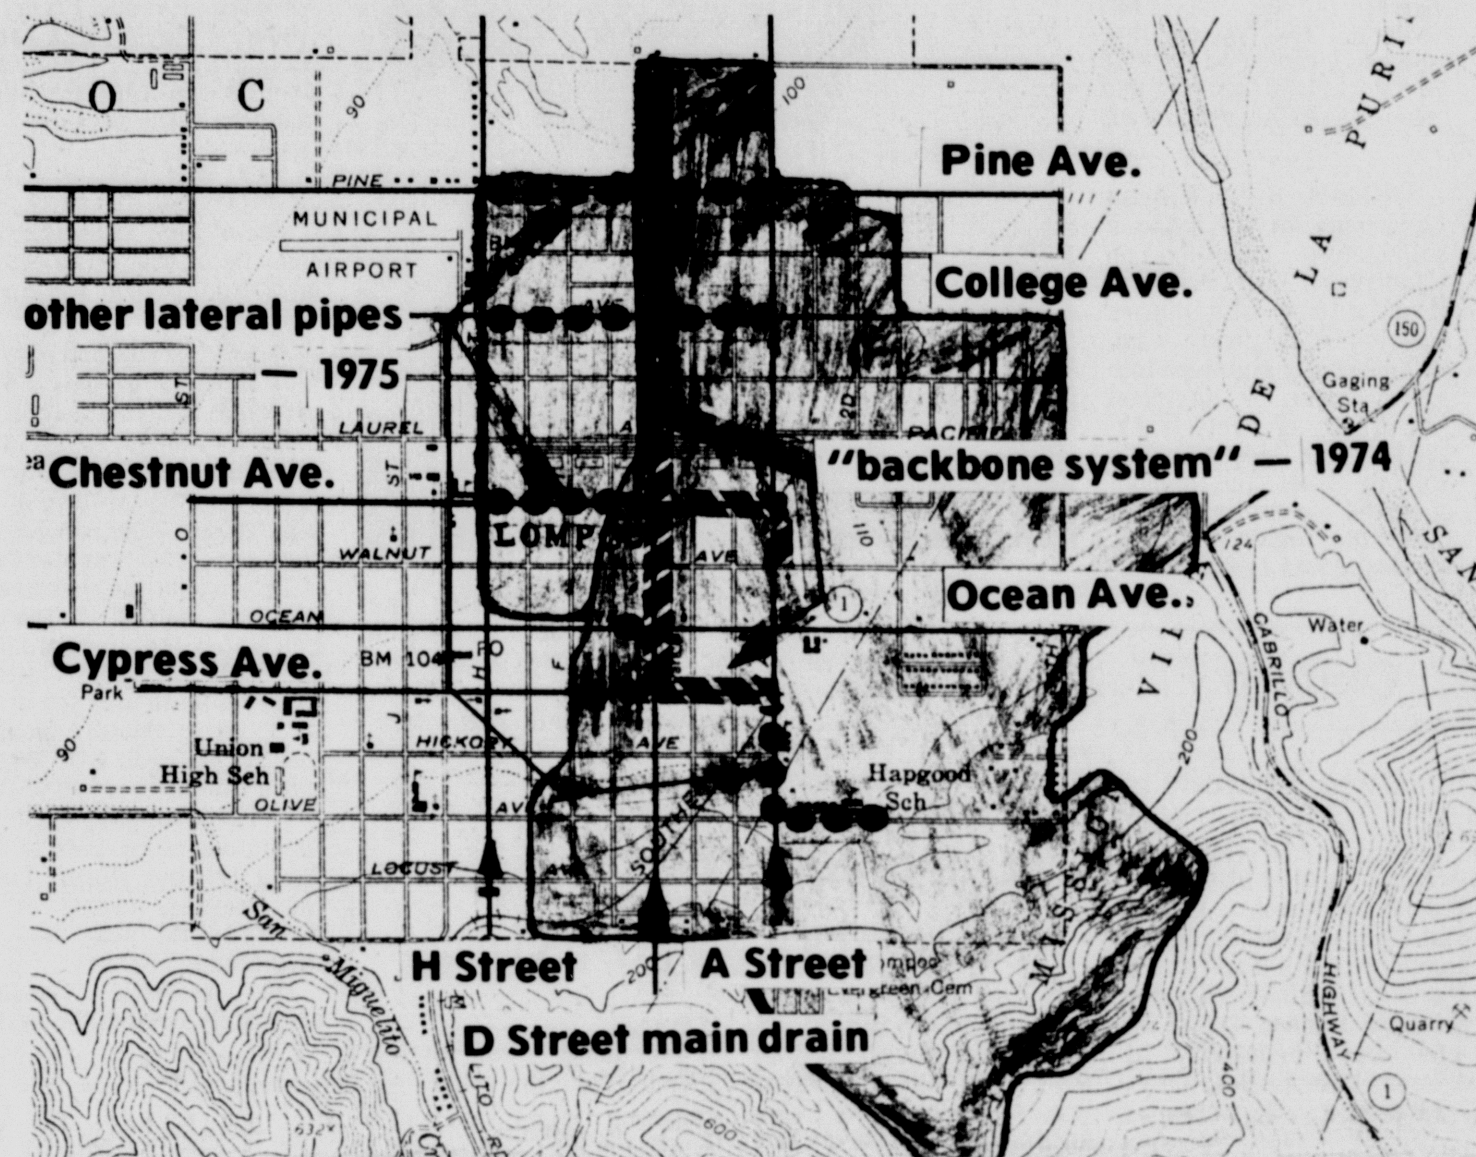

Phelps was reelected unanimously after some initial concern about his status on the seven-member commission. His term of office and that of fellow commissioners Fred Bock and Joe Mixsell were due to expire on June 30.

In the absence of any city council action since then to reappoint the three members or name replacements, it was determined that the three would continue reelected and Mixsell was elected vice chairman.

The commission on the urging of Phelps recommended that the city give the highest priority to the Cypress Avenue project which will be constructed with about $70,000 in monies laid aside beginning three years ago.

Water Department Chief Al Thompson told the commission the project could go to bid early this fall, perhaps in September or October. Work is continuing also on engineering for a water main on J Street, Thompson said.

The commissioners questioned Water Treatment Plant Chief Dale Batchelor about the possible future shortage of soda ash which is needed in the water treatment process. Batchelor said laboratory tests of substitute chemicals have proved successful enough to warrant a plant-wide test in the near future. He blamed the threat to the present supply of soda ash on a curtailment last year of natural gas supplies allotted to the big chemical producers.

LOMPOC'S STORM DRAIN system will branch from a main line under D Street. A "backbone" system, to be in service next winter, is depicted by the broken line. Lateral pipes, slated for completion the year after, are drawn in dotted lines. The bordered city area at right is the East side drainage area from which water will be drained by the primary system.

Flooded streets may become thing of the past

BY STEVE LA RUE

Remember winter? Autos wheel-high and stalled in a lake at Ocean Ave. and E Street? Kayaks plying down Chestnut Ave.? Hapgood Elementary School part swamp?

Well, it won't be that way next year, not if work projections for the "backbone" of Lompoc's storm drain system are correct.

The thought of an effective storm drain system can't be a new one here. It's probably been as frequent as every fording of a flooded intersection by car or man — frequent indeed.

But City Councilman Sol Lefkowitz, who has advocated and ushered the project slowly forward, assures we'll see the reality early next year: a backbone system that will dry up the worst intersections on the East side and significantly reduce ponding elsewhere.

By early 1975, Lefkowitz predicts, three lateral arms added under Pine, College and Chestnut Avenues will make serious flooding along H Street.

The backbone system's backbone is a 10 block-long main line running under D Street from Cypress to North Avenue, a little over a mile, and expanding from a 45 inch diameter near Cypress to a roaring six foot diameter at North.

The backbone network will probably also include part laterals on Cypress and Chestnut and for a block on North A Street. Together they will eliminate flooding in four of Lompoc's six soggiest intersections, Lefkowitz says. These are A Street's intersections with Cypress, Walnut and Chestnut Avenues and the Ocean and E Street winter confluence.

Farm, wholesale prices up in June

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With farm prices increasing at a record pace, wholesale prices shot up 2.4 per cent in June, the biggest monthly increase in more than 22 years, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said today.

Unemployment fell below 5 per cent for the first time in three years. The jobless figures for June dropped to 4.8 per cent, the BLS said.

The Labor Department's statistics bureau said the June wholesale price report did not reflect President Nixon's June 11 price freeze since the prices were checked before the ceiling was clamped on. The July Wholesale Price Index (WPI) to be released next month should reflect the freeze.

The 2.4 per cent wholesale price increase last month was the biggest jump since a 2.5 per cent increase in January, 1951 and continued the sharp climb in wholesale prices since President Nixon's Phase III controls began in January.

Wholesale prices now have risen 47 per cent over the past year, an all-time record for a 12-month period.

Biggest reason for the sharp jump in the WPI was a huge increase in the prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds.

Prices of farm products went up 7.0 per cent, an all-time record since the present series of statistics were started in 1947. The previous high was a 6.8 per cent increase in March of 1947 and again last December.

The BLS said the higher farm prices were led by a 23.4 per cent increase for hay, hay seeds and oilseeds, a 19.1 per cent increase for grains, and a 16.3 per cent jump for eggs. Livestock prices went up only 2.7 per cent while poultry prices increased 2.3 per cent.

The BLS said grain prices now have risen 89 per cent over the past year.

The Netherlands criticizes invasion

HELSINKI (UPI) — The Netherlands, criticizing the 1968 Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, said today a new system of European security should give nations the right to change their ideology "without interference in any form by any other state."

Without mentioning the Soviet Union by name, the speech by Dutch Foreign Minister Max van der Stoep was the most direct reference thus far at the five-day-old European Security Conference to the 1968 Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia.

A Soviet spokesman said two days ago the invasion was not "interference" but a response to a "request for assistance" from Prague.

As the first round of the three-round conference neared an end today, a rare heat wave hit this northern capital. As the temperature nudged 90 degrees in the shade, the air conditioning system in Helsinki's Finlandia House collapsed, leaving some of Europe's most powerful men coatless and mopping their brows.

But the gangling, mild-spoken van der Stoep chose his words coolly in saying that the final security conference documents — expected to be adopted next year — should not freeze Europe into two Communist-capitalist halves.

"It can happen," he said in a description of the 1968 Czechoslovak situation, "that a nation, which at some moment in its history had adopted a certain political or social-economic system, may want to adjust this system to changed circumstances..."

Propane gas tanker explodes in Arizona town

KINGMAN, Ariz. (UPI) — A railroad tanker of propane gas exploded Thursday, engulfing a factory, half a dozen businesses, part of a major transcontinental highway and scores of people in a monstrous blooming fireball 500 feet high.

Linder was westbound in Solvang when the mishap occurred according to the California Highway Patrol. Landeaux was a pedestrian.

Obituary

Jose Trejo

Rosary will be recited this evening at 8 p.m. at the Starbuck Mortuary Chapel and Mass will be celebrated tomorrow at 9 a.m. at La Purisima Catholic Church for Jose Pacheco Trejo, 64, who died Wednesday at Lompoc District Hospital.

Interment will follow in Lompoc Evergreen Cemetery. Mr. Trejo was born in Mexico in 1908 and was a Lompoc resident for 15 years, last residing at 522 North L Street. He was employed by Bodger Seed Company as a mechanic.

Survivors include his widow, Carmen, of the home address; four sons, Robert Allen of Reseda and Frank, Joe and John Trejo of Lompoc; and one daughter, Mrs. Josephine Ornelas of Lompoc; and 13 grandchildren.

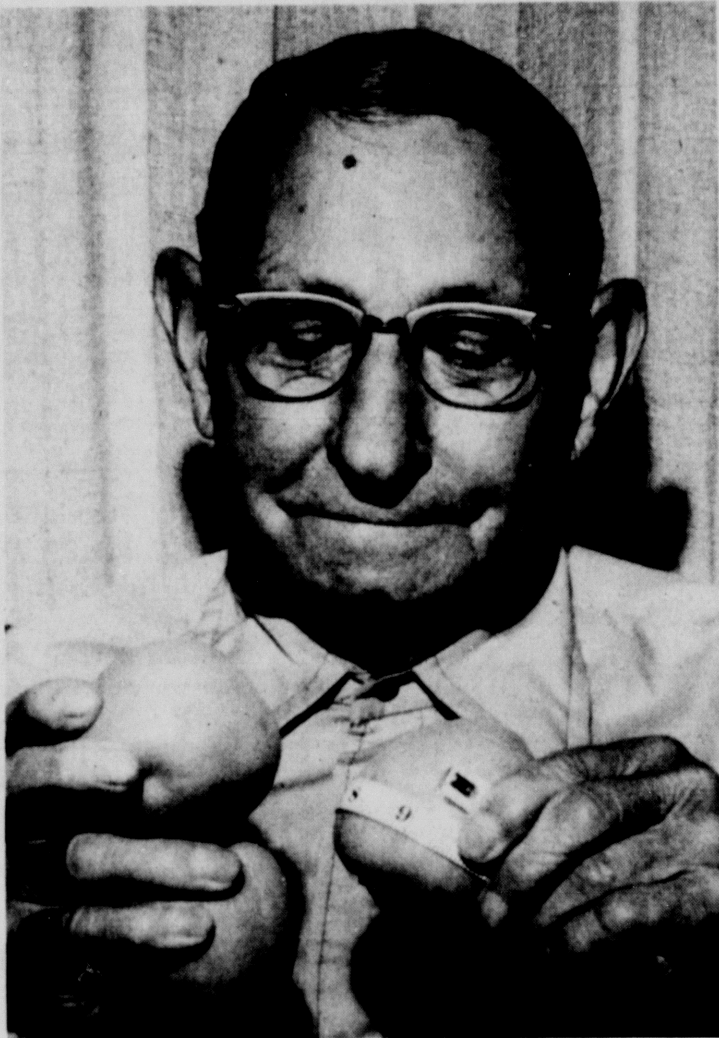

Other survivors include one brother, Pete Trejo, of Selma and a sister, Mrs. Santos Alvarada of Delano.

Screaming victims, their flesh charred, wandered through the disaster area, survivors said.

A portion of Route 66 covered by the fireball's fringes, was still closed today because of leaking storage tanks. "There are gas pockets still there and all it would take is a spark," said an officer of the department of Public Safety.

Fugitive arrested in Lompoc by FBI

A fugitive, Milton H. Woodfork, was arrested by the FBI at 3:25 p.m. yesterday as he was hiding under some blankets in a closet at 507 1/2 North B Street in Lompoc.

Joe B. Jamieson, assistant director in charge of the Los Angeles office of the FBI, advised that Woodfork was from the Washington, DC area and has been sought by the FBI in an investigation ranging from Washington, D.C. to California. The FBI said its investigation centered around the Lompoc area after recently-obtained information revealed Woodfork was living in the Doxel gas plant caught fire Thursday afternoon. The blaze began atop the railroad car. Firemen were fighting the blaze, drawing a large crowd of curious spectators into the area.

"First the fire was outside the tank, it seemed to be shooting up under pressure," said Ray Kirn, a DPS dispatcher who saw the disaster from about 200 yards away. "Then it got low and up went the tank. That's when it exploded.

"The fireball was clear out in the middle of the highway. It was monstrous. I saw a ship blow up once, a tanker. It looked just

Storm drain plan—

Because hill-collected rainwater dumps into town from Rudolph Canyon, south of Haggood School, and runs through the city from East to West and South to North, most of the West side's flood water will also be collected before it ever gets there.

The two other major ponding areas, the Chestnut and O Street intersection with what is known in winter as the Great Chestnut Avenue River, will be tellingly reduced by the backbone system. Lefkowitz a civil engineer, reports, and will be entirely provided for with the addition of the laterals.

How effective will the storm drain system be?

The system is designed to handle a 2.3-year flood, that is, an eight hour storm of a magnitude which we would expect every 2.3 years.

But Lefkowitz and City Engineer Barry Gustafson assure that it will be much more effective than this sounds. Here's how:

— The year vs. storm ratio is misleading. It reflects peak flow more accurately than total volume. A 10-year storm will pour only 10 per cent more water volume into town than a 2.3 year storm.

This would surpass the drain system's capacity, but only to the extent, Lefkowitz calculates, that there would be two or three inches in the worst intersections for no longer than 45 minutes or so. To design for a 10-year storm, though, would cost another $200,000: a lot to pay for 10 per cent more volume every 10 years.

— There actually hasn't been a 10-year magnitude storm here in the past 30 years, nor a 100-year storm. The 1969 flood was the result of events at Cachuma Dam. Rainfall that year was on the 2.3-year magnitude.

The statistic Gustafson believes accurately depicts the system's function is about like that. I'd say flames went 300 to 500 feet in the air.

"Then the tank car itself went up ... and over end in the air.

Officials said the tank flew a quarter of a mile.

Most of the Doxel plant was left in ruins. The "Country Kitchen Cafe," which had about a dozen customers at the time, caught fire and was destroyed, as well as a tow company yard and a tire sales firm. Two service stations were gutted, and homes and trailers throughout the area were scorched and their windows shattered.

this: out of 240 storms in the last 30 years, the new storm drain would have handled all but five without flooding. These five would have produced light ponding in the worst cross streets but not for long.

But the real tour de force about the system is that Lefkowitz, who says he'll run for reelection when his City Council term expires in April, will probably be able to pull it off without either a bond issue, a tax increase or a serious storm drain on the city's general fund.

The backbone system will cost $680,000, and the latter three laterals about $90,000.

Because D Street is a city thoroughfare and, therefore, a state Division of Highways designated "select street," the backbone project can draw $362,500 in surplus state transportation improvement funds (SB325).

State drainage participation will total a $10,000 minimum (the main line crosses a state highway), Lefkowitz appraises, flood control funds for the project will total $100,000 and $90,000 in revenue sharing money will be available.

The councilman, who says he's still probing for more money, added that the $90,000 for the later three laterals will be from 70 to 80 per cent underwritten by the state.

"This was one of the reasons that prompted me to run for office in the first place," Lefkowitz, who promised a drain system in his campaign, said, "It will certainly make this a more attractive place to live in."

Gustafson added that a side benefit of the drain construction, after the annoying excavation of the length of D Street, will be the removal of many intersection ruts.

But, he said, "It'll be just our luck that we'll have only one significant storm next year and it'll be a 100 year storm."

Even if this happens, he added, we'll be considerably better off.

Farmers, meat packers face new problems

United Press International

As the government announced new measures to increase food supplies, nature and economics presented farmers and meat packers with fresh problems.

Heavy rains Thursday—up to three inches in Plainfield, N.H.—poured down on New England, where flooding during the past weekend already had damaged crops enough to bring about a prediction that a resulting crop shortage would lead to an increase in the price of milk.

At least three meat packing plants announced they were shutting down in Michigan and Pennsylvania. Donald Slotkin, chairman of the National Independent Meat Packers Association, said President Nixon's 60-day freeze could force food rationing within "six to nine months, if not sooner."

In Washington, however, Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent, acting with the approval of Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, announced Thursday that export controls had been clamped on another 41 commodities, in an effort to boost domestic supplies and thus decrease the costs of meat and poultry. The new measures follow last week's restrictions on oils pressed from cottonseed and soybeans.

The new restrictions include peanuts, sunflower seed, linseed and safflower meals; alfalfa and meat meals; prepared livestock feeds; and animal fats and edible oils such as lard and cooking oils, which are mainly for human consumption.

U.S. dollar still going down

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar, already at an all time low, fell even further today in Europe, Hong Kong and Tokyo in the face of a flood of rumors that the United States would devalue the dollar for the third time this weekend.

The London Evening Standard said a major development to deal with the monetary crisis could be imminent and may involve linking European Common Market currencies to gold instead of the dollar. It said the situation had reached crisis dimensions and that "market men were talking of a crunch being imminent—possibly this weekend."

The dollar bought less than four French francs in Paris today for the first time in 16 years. It reached an all time low against the Japanese yen and American tourists in Hong Kong got less than five Hong Kong dollars for $1 today for the first time in history.

Appeals to board of equalization now open

The period in which property owners can apply to the County Board of Equalization for reductions in the assessed valuation on their properties now is open. It will close at 5 p.m. Aug. 27.

Howard C. Menzel, assistant county clerk and clerk of the Board of Supervisors, is reminding taxpayers that applications for assessment reduction are now available in his office on the fourth floor of the County Administration Building.

He explained that eight copies of the application must be filed with his office before the deadline.

The applicant will have the responsibility to convince the Supervisors at their equalization hearings, expected to start in September, that the county assessor had placed a too high market value on his property.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

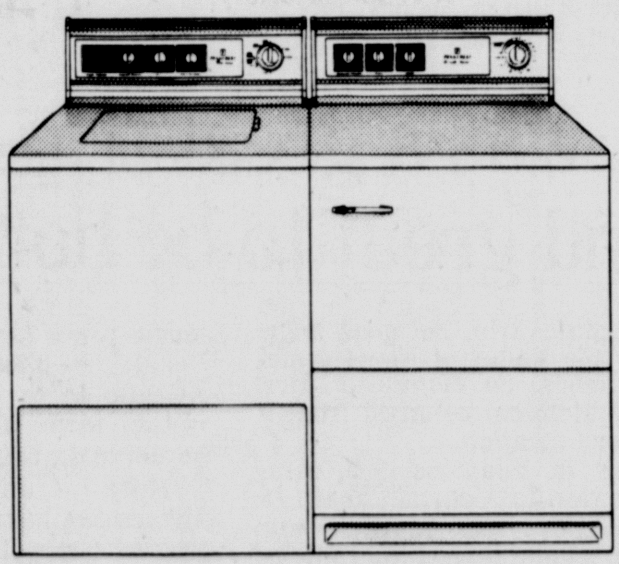

A publisher's editorial representative will be in Santa Maria in August. He will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication by Carlton Press, Inc., well-known New York publishing firm. All subjects will be considered including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, drama, religion, philosophy, etc.

If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work and stating which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment and kindly mention your phone number. You will promptly receive a confirmation for a definite time and place. Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to the representative (address below) for a free reading and evaluation. He will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress. Please address:

Avalanche of assessment appeals expected

BY DICK PRAUL
County Reporter

The first county property assessment appeals were on file today with the County Board of Equalization calling for huge assessment cuts on undeveloped properties adversely affected by South Coast area water and sewer connection moratoriums.

At the same time, many attorneys, looking forward to doing a landoffice business in appeal filings this summer, were taking out appeal application forms by the hundreds and even a thousand in some cases.

Initial protests comprising five parcels in the Montecito area, where moratoriums are in effect, allege that market values are down to the point where it is necessary to request $180,000 in reductions, and up to 90 per cent in some cases.

The lower assessments are sought on the basis of what the property owners feel their parcels are now worth.

The Board of Equalization, comprising the five county supervisors, expect to start hearings by early fall. They have been warned to expect 2,000 or more appeal filings this year, about double last year's load. But others close to the property tax picture say even more than this figure might result due to the general unhappiness about the moratoriums and an assessor's reappraisal project this year adding $17 million in market valuation to county properties.

Another stimulant to the appeal load is the Friends of Santa Barbara County organization, which is calling on developers and others who have invested in properties they cannot currently develop, to ask for reduced assessments.

The period in which property owners can apply to the board for reductions in assessed valuation has just opened and will close Aug. 27 at 5 p.m. Filings are with the clerk of the Board of Supervisors in the County Administration Building.

Applications are available on the fourth floor of the county building in the office of Howard C. Menzel, clerk of the board.

In addition to assessment appeals from the Montecito district where moratoriums are in effect, many others are expected from the Goleta County Water District, where water rationing and a ban on new water connections has halted plans to develop many properties.

New coordinator expected July 23

The county's newly-hired, first environmental quality coordinator will be on the job July 23.

Albert F. Reynolds, 52, appointed to the post with an annual starting salary of $21,375, is to select his own staff of two environmental specialists and clerical personnel from a list of candidates recruited by the County Personnel Department.

Reynolds, whose appointment was confirmed by the Board of Supervisors, has been serving as associate director for finance and administration with the Comprehensive Planning Organization, Regional Council of Governments, in San Diego.

He is a former executive assistant in San Diego County's Environmental Development Agency.

Creation of the environmental quality office was approved early this year by the county supervisors.

Hopes were expressed that it could be functioning by May or June, but delays crept in, and now it appears the office may not be operative until sometime in August.

The new office will prepare county environmental assessment of private projects in place of the present practice of allowing developers to hire environmental statements drawn up on behalf of their own projects, with county input and review.

Brown aide says GOP lawmakers ducking probe

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A top aide to Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. says some Republican lawmakers are "ducking" Brown's investigation into charges the GOP contributed to Peace and Freedom Party candidates.

Tom Quinn, deputy secretary of state, said Thursday, "We're receiving silence from many persons who were involved. They're just refusing to talk."

The investigation was begun following reports that Republicans provided $3,500 in last year's primary election to Peace and Freedom legislative and congressional candidates in hopes of drawing votes away from Democrats.

Brown is a Democrat and contender for the 1974 gubernatorial nomination.

Quinn has said the probe has turned up "violations of the law" involving "failure to report campaign expenditures and contributions."

In an interview Thursday, Quinn said the investigation was being slowed by an inability to contact persons allegedly involved.

"I have a lot of Republicans I want to talk to," he declared. "There are a number who are ducking every phone call, and secretaries of these people have many excuses for why they're not available."

Quinn declined to disclose the names of lawmakers who might be involved.

"I am really reluctant to bandy about specific names of specific legislators at this point because it is very easy to make an allegation," he said.

Quinn stated post-election campaign expenditure and contribution statements by both Republicans and Peace and Freedom candidates should have shown whether any money changed hands among them.

Interest rates to go up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Your savings account can now earn more interest, but the interest you will pay for an FHA or VA insured home mortgage is also about to go up.

These were the results of a series of government actions announced Thursday. Debate has already begun as to whether they will be good or bad for the average citizen and the economy.

Both the National Association of Home Builders and the National League of Insured Savings Associations denounced the actions as inflationary.

Effective immediately, the government allowed commercial banks to raise interest on passbook savings accounts from 4.5 to 5 per cent. There were similar increases for certificates of deposit.

Savings and loan institutions were told they can soon raise their passbook rate from 5 to 5.25 per cent.

The ceiling on interest for mortgages backed by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and the Veterans Administration (VA), will go from 7 to 7 3/4 per cent. In the case of FHA, this won't happen until Congress completes the technicality of renewing the government's mortgage authority. Congress went off on its Fourth of July recess, letting this expire June 30.

James T. Lynn, secretary of housing and urban development (HUD), says the FHA increase will be good for the average citizen because it will keep FHA money available for home buyers.

A rational alternative to rationing gas.

What's right with this picture? Well if it were true, we'd be saving 28 billion, 560 million gallons of gas every year.

How did we arrive at that figure? Since we're a nation of national averages, we know the average car uses about 735 gallons of gas a year. The Beetle, 399*. Turn the eighty-five million average cars on the road right now into Beetles, and it works out to a saving of 28,560,000,000 (give or take a few gallons).

Now we haven't figured out all the water and antifreeze that would be saved with the Beetle's air-cooled engine.

Nor can we compute the extra parking space that would be around.

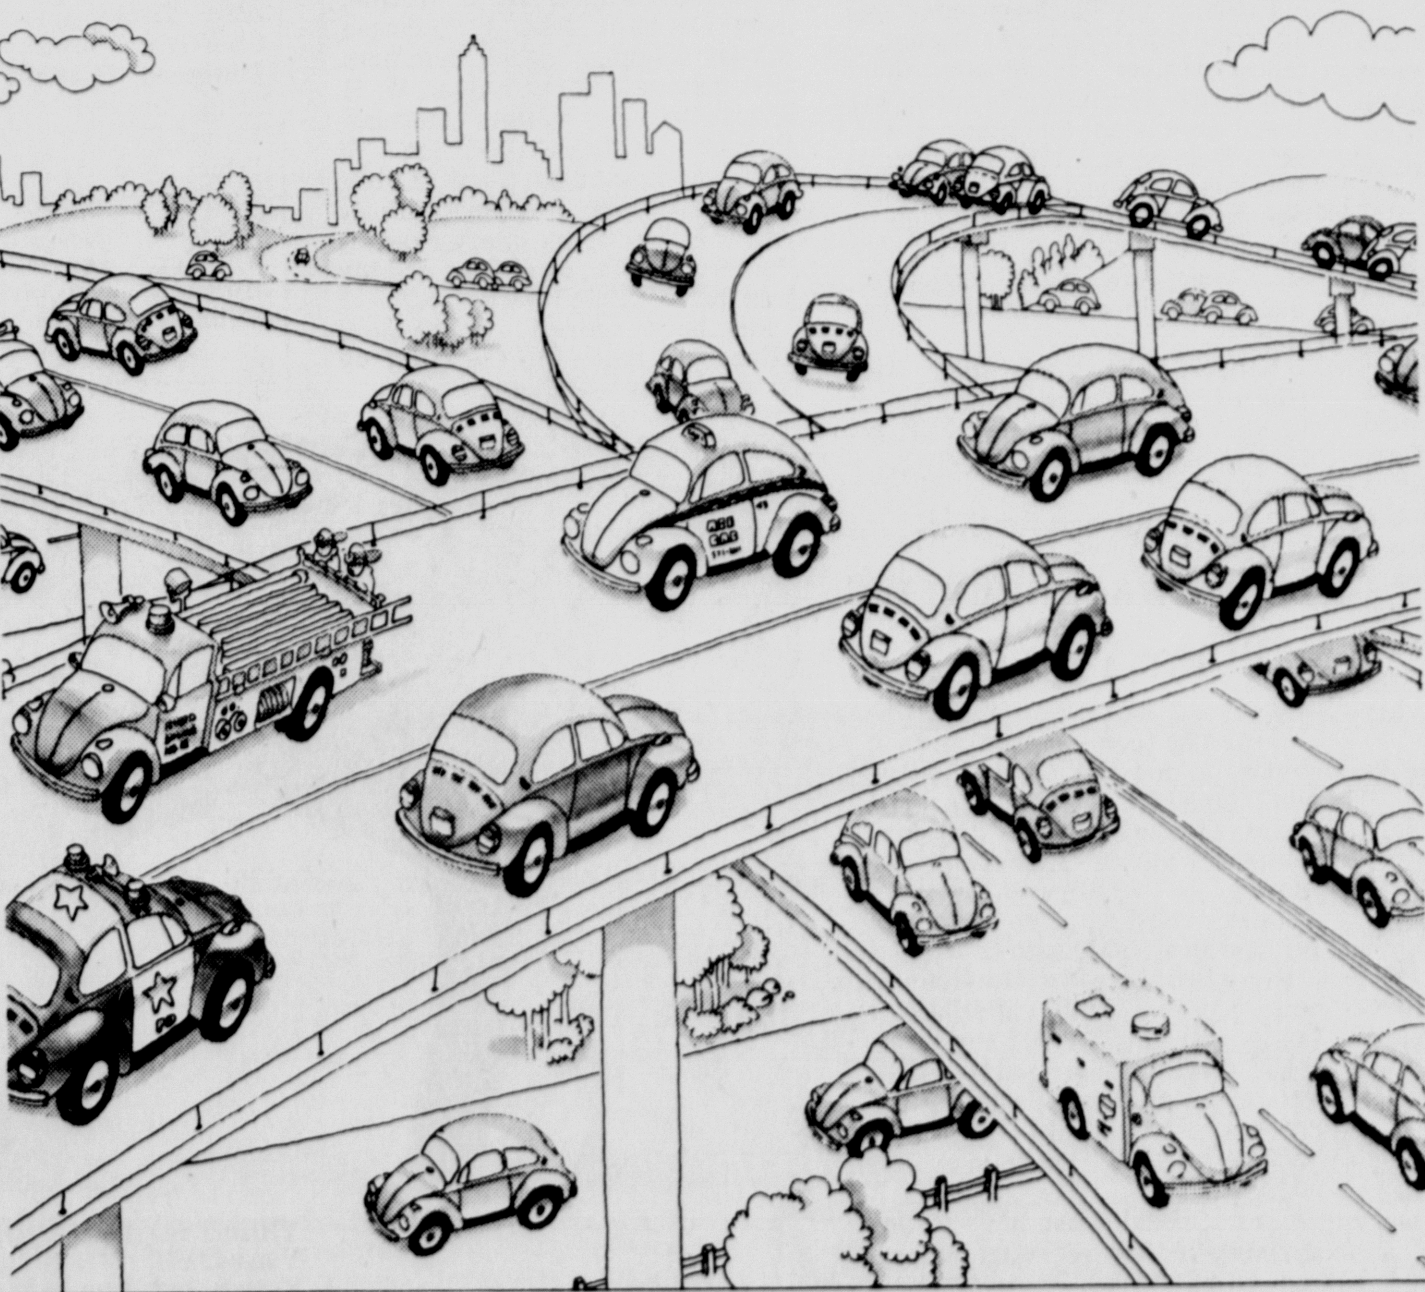

Not to mention all the money people would be able to save in a world of Volkswagens.

But we know for sure that this is no pipe dream. There already are police car Beetles up in Ossining. And a custom built, chauffeur-driven Bug in L. A. And Volkswagen taxis all over Honduras. And a Beetle that herds cattle in Missouri.

So with gas prices going up and rationing becoming a reality, the Beetle never looked so good. In fact, you might almost call it beautiful.

Nation's weather

United Press International

Flood-soaked New England has received at least a temporary reprieve from flooding that has left at least 12 persons dead and caused millions of dollars in damage.

The rains left behind damage estimated at $60 million in Vermont and New Hampshire alone.

There was flooding last weekend and this Wednesday and Thursday and at least one death has been attributed to the latest foul weather. However, the National Weather Service said today that the cloud-gray skies over New England would give way to sunny weather for at least the next two days.

There was still, however, some concern that renewed rains by Sunday could pose further problems.

Thunderstorms skipped across several scattered areas of the nation Thursday night and early today. An isolated storm buffeted Tucson, Ariz., Thursday night with winds in excess of 60 miles per hour.

Humid air pushing inland from the Gulf of Mexico touched off scattered thunderstorms in the eastern half of the nation. Three inches of rain doused Houston Intercontinental Airport Wednesday night and marble-sized hail pelted Beaumont, Tex.

Storm rumbled through Minnesota early today and a severe thunderstorm watch was in effect for portions of northern and central Minnesota.

There was dry air in the West today, bringing cloud-free skies from the Pacific Coast to the Plains, though cloudy weather was the rule in Washington state, where there was some light rain.

Miss Karen Marie Silva weds Kim Walton

Newlyweds greet 300 at reception

On their honeymoon in Monterey are Mr. and Mrs. Kim Walton, nee Karen Marie Silva, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy R. Silva, Jr., 1551 Drum Canyon Road. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Gale B. Walton, 913 North Third St.

The couple exchanged marriage vows Sunday afternoon, July 1 in the home of Judge Arden Jensen of Solvang. Candles lit the fireplace altar.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of white lace and net over satin. The fitted bodice featured an off-shoulder neckline and long lace sleeves. Accenting the skirt were a peplum and a panel of lace cascading to a full train. Her fingertip veil fell from a star styled netted pearl and rhinestone cap. A gift was her gold chain with single pearl set in gold. White roses and blue baby's breath fashioned her cascade bouquet, with center corsage.

Serving her sister as honor maid was Miss Kathy Joyce Silva, in a blue chiffon gown with turtle necked bodice featuring puffed white lace sleeves. Blue and white satin streamers accented her bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Groomsmen were Danny Campbell of Concord and Dane Walton, his brother.

Lompoc Veterans Memorial Hall was scene of the wedding reception where a chicken barbecue was served 300 guests. Chefs were the Messrs. Harry Ostini, Manuel Silva, Alfred Luis, Joe Ostini and Victor Sousa.

Also assisting were Mrs. Frank Silva of Buellton and the Mmes. Robert Mendez, Russell Craig, Joe Ostini and Pat Campbell.

Mrs. Frank Costa made and cut the four tiered wedding cake decorated with miniature cupids, white roses and crystal grapes and doves. Serving punch were Harold Sjovald and Mrs. Cecil Rosauer.

Attending the guestbook was Miss Donna Howard. At the gift table were the Misses Kathi Costa and Jennifer Hart.

Providing music for dancing were the Silvernotes of Santa Maria (aunt and uncle of the bride.)

Flowers in miniature vases lined the guest tables. Marking the bride's table were arrangements of white gladioli, baby's breath, blue agapanthus and bachelor buttons, by Mrs. Attilio Rivaldi.

For her daughter's wedding day, Mrs. Silva wore a pink chiffon gown in princess style, with long slit sleeves and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a long gown of orange crepe and a white carnation corsage.

For the couple's wedding trip the bride wore a pink chiffon pleated skirt dress with white lace top and a white baby rose corsage.

A June graduate of Lompoc High School, she was secretary for Future Farmers of America the last two years. She was recently employed at the San Martin Cafe.

A Lompoc High School graduate of 1972, the bridegroom will attend his second year at Lassen College in Susanville this fall. Until September the newlyweds will live at 118-E North B St.

Artists schedule two paint-outs

Two paint-outs and a family picnic are scheduled by Lompoc Valley Art Association this month. The events are in lieu of the usual formal monthly meeting.

First paint-out session is scheduled this Sunday, July 8 at Ken Adam Park, starting at 10 a.m. Picnic tables and rest rooms are available. Second painting session will begin at 10 a.m. Sunday, July 29. The artists will start at Los Alamos for painting local scenes in that area.

Members and families are invited to participate in the picnic slated Sunday, July 15 in Miguelito Canyon Park. Individuals are requested to bring their own food and drink plus a covered dish for sharing.

Two new members are recorded on the rolls: Bunny Brennan, 1309 West College Ave., and Christina Payne, 614 Elm St., Vandenberg AFB.

It was a great trip—and great to be home

A delightful trip, but good to be back to the Valley of Flowers and local friends. So comments Mrs. Dorothy McKeon, returned from a three week vacation.

It was in mid-June that Mrs. McKeon flew to Alberta, Canada to meet her daughter Marilyn, her husband, Major Robert W. DeLeve and their children, Mark, Mike and Ann. The DeLeves had driven down the Alkan Highway from Fairbanks, Alaska where he has served in the U.S. Air Force. They were on the way to Mountain Home AFB, Idaho on a new assignment.

Spending two interesting days in Edmonton, the family group then continued to Regina, Saskatchewan where they toured the Academy for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The R.C.M.P. were preparing for a visit from Queen Elizabeth of England on occasion of their 100th birthday. The force has the most extensive area of jurisdiction of any single police force in the world. Its "beat" is 3,256 miles from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and 3,000 miles from Canada's Southern border to the North Pole.

Down from Regina into Minnesota, the travelers took a side trip to Griswold, simply because they have friends of that name. The town consists of half a dozen houses, a grocery store, gas station and grain elevator, that's about all, reports Dorothy. They saw one great bargain however. For sale at $600 is an interesting looking four bedroom house.

Following travel in Canada and Minnesota, came stops in Wisconsin where Mrs. McKeon was raised. She had hoped to take her grandchildren swimming in Lake Winnebago where she used to swim at midnight. They found this formerly beautiful lake with 100 miles of shoreline, to be too polluted to allow swimming.

She did however, have the pleasure of introducing the children to friends she had known in her first grade of school and many of her fellow high school graduates. Family and friends entertained the visitors.

Enroute then to Des Moines, Iowa to visit with Major DeLeve's family, the group stopped at the Wisconsin Dells, "a fantastic trip on both the Upper and Lower Dells."

From Des Moines, Mrs. McKeon flew to San Francisco for a three day "grand finale" of her vacation, with friends she has known since living in the Philippine Islands many years ago.

Alpha Club picnic slated Wednesday

Lompoc Alpha Club will hold its annual picnic Wednesday, July 11 in Ryon Park. Serving will be at 12 noon. All members are invited to come, bringing a favorite casserole dish, salad or dessert. Any further information may be had by calling Skip (Mrs. Orville) Erdman, 3-2946.

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Deborah Sue Dunham to John Whiting Cullinan has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Dunham, 241 Amherst Place. Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John Whiting Cullinan, Denver, Colo. Miss Dunham is a 1973 graduate of Lompoc High School. Her fiance is a graduate of College of Santa Fe, New Mexico. He has recently been discharged from the United States Air Force. The couple's marriage will be held Saturday, August 11 in La Purisima Catholic Church.

Dear Abby

20-year marriage needs a sex revival

DEAR ABBY: I am a wife and mother. I have a lovely home, two wonderful children and a marriage of 20 years which is rapidly deteriorating. Our sex life is a complete washout. We no longer enjoy sex together, yet we are both too loyal to each other to look elsewhere.

We cannot communicate. We simply cannot express ourselves well enough to tell each other what is wrong. In fact, I don't think either of us knows what is wrong.

In 20 years we have both changed so much that I am not the same girl he married, and he is not the man I married.

We don't fight, argue, yell or fuss at each other. We get along fine, as firends, but deep down, we are both empty. We stay together for two reasons: 1) We don't want to hurt our children. 2) A known evil is better than an unknown evil. (We're both afraid we might be worse off apart than together.)

I am 42. He is 48. I wonder how many other couples have the same problem?

EMPTY IN MEMPHIS

DEAR EMPTY: The most authoritative statistics say about 50 percent. I say that's conservative. There is much more to a marriage than you are getting, which is not news to you, or you wouldn't have written to me. If your husband is as eager to revive your marriage as you, ask your doctor or clergyman to recommend a good counselor or therapist.

DEAR ABBY: This is my second marriage. We consented to have my husband's son stay with us "for a little while" while he was in the process of getting his third divorce.

The son has been with us for a year. He is quiet and unassuming, pays his room and board money regularly, but I feel that our privacy is more important than his convenience.

I have suggested to my husband that he ask his son to get a place of his own. My husband insists that we can't "kick him out." I don't see it that way. The son is 40. Am I wrong?

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: No. Suggesting that he find other quarters is not the same as "kicking him out." If after you make the suggestion he refuses to leave—then kick him out.

DEAR ABBY: Here is a real sticky wicket for you. How do you say no graciously when it involves the cousin of your fiance?

On several occasions this girl (she is 16) has asked me if she could be a bridesmaid when Doug (not his real name) and I get married.

I intend to have my very close friends for my bridesmaids, but I hate to hurt this girl's feelings. I talked it over with Doug and he said he wouldn't be offended if I told her no. But how can I tell her and keep peace in the family?

HATES TO HURT

DEAR HATES: Tell her the truth—that you are having your closest friends for you bridesmaids. Period.

Friends fete farewell for Mrs. Russell Decker

Accompanying a friend to Village Country Club for luncheon Thursday, Fairest (Mrs. Russell) Decker was surprised to find a large party group assembled to do her honor. The Deckers are moving this month to a new home in the Upland Mobile Estates. Driving there today, they will spend a week before returning to Lompoc to make the final move.

Planning the luncheon party was Loucille (Mrs. Maurice) Barnes, a fellow-member of Lompoc Alpha Club with which the honoree has been associated for many years. Mrs. Decker is a club coordinator between Alpha and Jr. Alpha Clubs. She has served the senior club as visual arts chairman, and through the years in other capacities, including help in the annual flower show.

Yellow baby roses tied with ribbons of orange and yellow fashioned the corsage presented her by Mrs. Barnes. A group gift was a money box.

Party guests included the Mmes.

Housewarming fetes William Ratcliffs

Hosted by their daughter and son-in-law, Jo and Jim Turri, and their son Gregg was a surprise housewarming for Mr. and Mrs. William Ratcliff. The couple has moved to Continental Mobile Estates. Assisting as co-hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Huston.

Preceding the party, the Ratcliffs were guests of their children at a family dinner in the Orr House. On their return home, party guests were awaiting them. Centering the refreshment table was an arrangement of carnations and mums.

Guests included the Messrs. and Mmes. A.C. Ahlswede, Carl Willoby, Leo Archer, Keith Foster, Martin Coday, D.O. Weber, Alex Robert, Mac McQuade, Joe Martin, Stuart Dodds, Merle Adams, Mrs. Bess Tolman, mother of Mrs. Ratcliff; Miss June Parsley and Carl Lopez.

Your birthday by Stella

FRIDAY, JULY 6 — Born today, you are not by nature a vindictive person; nevertheless, you find it extremely difficult to turn the other cheek time after time without acting either to protect yourself from the harm done you by others or to get even in one way or another. "Tit-for-tat" is not a game you enjoy playing — but you enjoy even less standing on the sidelines watching yourself lose by default. Ultimately, you will probably act against your basic character and discover ways in which you can get a little of your own back. Cautious when it comes to financial matters, you are inclined to be something less than that concerning your personal relationships. Although you know all the benefits and advantages that can accrue to those who are selective about their friendships, you yourself are anything but that. Easy to talk to, even easier to lean on, you may find eventually that your time is so taken up with other

Virtually all rubber bridge players know about Blackwood convention and tend to drag it out on the slightest provocation. Most of them seem to think it illegal to bid a slam unless at some stage on the way one of the partners murmurs "Four no-trump."

South's four no-trump bid illustrates this. He holds 19 points. His partner has given him a jump raise. Naturally enough, he is interested in a slam and goes right into Blackwood.

This bid gives North no problem. He has one ace and responds five diamonds.

Now we get back to South. He knows there is an ace against him. He looks at his two little diamonds and decides to stop at five and win the rubber. Six wraps up and he asks North, "How could I tell which ace you held?"

North doesn't bother to answer. The rubber is over and the score marked down. We can answer. There was no way, but there was no reason for South to use Blackwood. He should have bid four clubs after the three-spade response. This would have made it easy for North to bid four diamonds to show that ace whereupon South could have jumped right to six spades or gone into Blackwood to see if North might hold two aces.

"Some of you are going to be heartbroken" or the Casting Blues Dinner

"If you have 100 actors in a company and you're doing 'Hamlet', 99 people are going to be disappointed...its the nature of the business. Learning emotionally how to deal with that is one of the hardest things young actors have to do." — Donovan Marley, Allan Hancock drama department head.

By STAN TULLEDO
Feature Editor

They call it the "Casting Blues Dinner". But everyone looked pleased as they talked excitedly and ate Santa Maria barbecue in the student center at Allan Hancock College three weeks ago.

Donovan Marley, director of the summer Pacific Conservatory of the Performing Arts (PCPA), now in its ninth season at AHC, had prepared them for this moment three days before.

"Some of you are going to be heartbroken. Some of you are going to lose roles you would have easily won somewhere else," he told the 49 student-actors and actresses who were chosen for PCPA from auditions held in California and other states last spring.

He added, earnestly: "After casting, you should look at yourself. If you know you can not accept your position in the company effectively than you should not stay."

This was part of Marley's welcoming remarks to the 1973 company. Present were about 130 people: student actors and actresses, artists-in-residence, directors, designers, and technicians from colleges, universities, and professional acting companies across the country.

Immediately after his address that Friday afternoon in the performing arts theater, prepared auditions started. The theater was cleared and closed to everyone except for the five directors, ten artists-in-residence, and Marley.

Jeff Combs, a AHC student from Lompoc, walked on stage and did a humorous selection from "Things That Go Bump in the Night".

A hefty blond from San Francisco was next. She got down on her knees, transformed into an ugly, pathetic girl and confessed killing her unkind mother.

Except for three pink plastic chairs and a crumpled piece of white paper, student-actors perform alone on stage. The directors view each audition and say nothing. Their aim is to select actors they feel would best fit where in their shows, if at all.

"It's the prepared auditions that are hell for me," one student-actress said.

A favorable sign of how an actor did in auditions is how many call-backs he is wanted for the next day. Most likely a call-back means a director noted the actor and would like him to come back to read a role from the script; the director hasn't yet decided who he'll cast in that part. The next day was Saturday. All day call-backs for this summer's five plays were held by each director in different rooms on campus. Some student-actresses talked outside on the grass, waiting for their time to go in.

"Where's Tina?"

"I don't know. She went somewhere and I think she was upset because she didn't get any call-backs."

"Oh, that's terrible. Call-backs for 'Music Man' haven't been posted yet. Tell her that when you see her."

In the student center, Director James Dunn, theater arts head at the College of Marin during the school year, conducts call-backs for "The Caucasian Chalk Circle". About 15 students are present.

"OK, who wants to read Ludovica?" asks Dunn.

Several student-actresses raise their hand. "OK, we'll start down here and go around."

It's unexpected. Six actresses read the same lines, but at least four discernible Ludovicas come to mind, each separated by tone, accent, and conception.

Dunn is surprising too. One would expect a director, in a stereotype way, to hint at impatience or disregard for actors. But Dunn is patient, sympathetic; he treats a group of actors equally.

"Casting, for me: it's my albatross. I know so many people will be heartbroken," Dunn says.

He is a former actor who knows that, no matter how many times you have been on stage, auditions create incredible pressure. Sometimes a nervous actor may not do as well as he could, so Dunn tries to make the situation as comfortable as possible, he explained.

Castings — who'll play which role in this summer's PCPA productions — were scheduled to be posted the next day at 5:30 p.m. in hallway in the performing arts center, an hour and a half before the "Casting Blues Dinner" started. There were more call-backs that morning, but the company had the afternoon off.

Marley advised them Friday, "Enjoy it because Sunday afternoon will be the last day you have off until the end of July."

'The Music Man'

Directed by Treyz

"The Music Man," one of the most blissful productions ever mounted on the stage of the Pacific Conservatory of the Performing Arts at Allan Hancock College, is being directed by Russell Treyz, winner of the Drama Desk Award as the most promising director of 1970-1971.

Treyz, 32, is in his first season with the Pacific Conservatory. He comes to Santa Maria from New York where he directed over 30 productions including "Whitsuntide" which earned him the Drama Desk Award. He also directed 37 other productions in regional theatres across the nation.

Treyz completed his masters of fine arts in directing at Yale University and from there he went to Interlochen Arts Academy in Michigan where he taught drama. In Ashtabula, Ohio he founded a year round arts program and from there he went to New York in 1968 where he has remained until this summer. When he departs in the early fall he will go to Tanglewood Summer Theatre in Pennsylvania where he will do five shows.

Critics from major magazines and newspapers have been laudatory about Treyz's contributions as a director. Said:

"The New York Times of 'Whitsuntide,' ...brilliantly directed. He has choreographed the proceedings, joined the dance with realism in a most original manner. He is the most exciting new director in town."

Saturday Review on "The Refrigerators," "...his production of Mario Fratti's short, satirical horror play succeeds in catching the original work's highly absurd flavor."

Show Business reviewing "Like Nothing," "This week I discovered a brilliant new director. This production brimmed with excitement and energy through the brilliant staging of Russell Treyz."

In his portrayal of "The Music Man" at PCPA, Treyz says, "We are attempting to develop a feeling of moving from a dusty Iowa town in the early 1900s to the wonderful dream-fantasy world that "The Music Man" creates. The play is a wonderful blend of Americana and delightful music ranging from the rousing "76 Trombones" to the lovely "Til There Was You."

THE MUSIC MAN, the blissful musical which LIFE Magazine described as the stage production "...in which just about everything seems perfect" will open at the Pacific Conservatory of the Performing Arts at Allan Hancock College in Santa Maria Wednesday, July 11. Robert Sevr (with trumpet) plays Harold Hill, the disarming swindler who spellbinds the gullible townsfolk into starting a brass band; Jerry Phelps is Winthrop; Stephanie Voss (back) is Mrs. Paroo; and Debbie May (right) is Marian Paroo, the librarian who sings such favorites as "Goodnight My Someone" and "My White Knight."

Krogh faces grand jury, takes fifth amendment

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former White House aide Egil "Bud" Krogh, who once accepted responsibility for the Ellsberg burglary, took the 5th Amendment Thursday before the grand jury investigating the crime.

Krogh spent only five minutes before the "Watergate West" grand jury, made a brief statement to reporters that took less than a minute, then left.

Although the grand jury proceedings are secret, it was apparent from the in-and-out appearance by Krogh, the climactic witness before the panel, that he had refused to testify. The Los Angeles Times today quoted sources close to the case as saying Krogh took the 5th Amendment.

He was expected to be the last witness of significant importance until the grand jury reconvenes Sept. 4, when District Attorney Joseph Busch indicated he will seek criminal indictments.

"We're not here for the fun of it," the district attorney said.

Krogh, in his letter to President Nixon resigning from the government, said it was his "overwhelming desire to take responsibility" for the burglary at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist by the White House "plumbers." The break-in was one of the factors cited by the judge in the Pentagon Papers trial for dismissing all charges against

Daniel Ellsberg on grounds of "pervasive government misconduct."

Krogh had agreed to appear voluntarily before the grand jury, but later backed out on the grounds, according to his lawyer, that he was the main target of the investigation.

He was subpoenaed and brought from Washington on orders of a federal judge.

Couple survived on rain water

SEOUL (UPI) — A British couple rescued after drifting for 117 days on a life raft in the Pacific said today they survived on rain water, 30 turtles, eight seagulls and six sharks.

Michael Bailey, 41, and his 32-year-old wife were picked up by a South Korean fishing boat on June 30 but the story of their ordeal was not disclosed until Thursday.

"We are happy now," Bailey told a Seoul newspaper, "but we will not sail a boat again."

The newspaper Hankook Ilbo said it talked by radio for 20 minutes with skipper Suh Jungil and the Baileys, en route to the South Korean port of Pusan aboard the vessel Weolmi. The ship is scheduled to dock early next month.

Bailey, a printer, and his wife left England a year ago aboard an eight-ton yacht on an around the world voyage to New Zealand. They had left Panama on Feb. 26, they said, when the yacht sank after colliding with a whale March 4 about 400 miles off Mexico.

Then, they said, they pieced together two life rafts and began drifting.

They drank rain water, the Baileys said, and ate seagulls, turtles and sharks they caught with hooks fashioned from pins.

Seven vessels passed without seeing them, the couple said, before the Weolmi approached.

The skipper said he ordered his ship to approach cautiously after a crewman spotted an object bobbing in the water at a distance of about three miles.

When rescued, the couple said, they were in "extremely weak condition" and could hardly stand.

No authority to ration gas?

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The federal government has no authority to enforce gas rationing and its other tough antismog proposals on Los Angeles and the rest of California, according to the state Air Resources Board.

The board met Thursday in a special session on the Environmental Protection Agency's proposals released last month calling for a series of controls in the six-county South Coast Air Basin that could virtually halt use of personal cars by 1977.

The board agreed that EPA could propose regional plans to meet smog-free standards of the federal Clean Air Act as required by law. But the five members emphatically insisted there was no authority, either civil or criminal, for the federal government to enforce its plans or require the state to implement them.

The board also criticized as unworkable major portions of the announced plans for Los Angeles, including gas rationing.

"Is the EPA purporting to send the governor to jail if we don't implement these plans?" chided board member R. Robert Brattain. "Or will they jail the legislature for not enacting legislation to implement them?"

William Simmons, staff counsel for the board, said the EPA was treading on the "sovereignty of the state" by claiming enforcement power.

Simmons said he requested an official opinion from Attorney General Evelle J. Younger on the "serious constitutional questions," but it had not been prepared yet.

Ford convertible era comes to end

DETROIT (UPI) — The convertible era ended at Ford Motor Co. at 10:40 a.m. Thursday when a 1973 Mercury Cougar with a ragtop rolled off the Dearborn assembly line.

Only General Motors will offer the soft-top on 1974 models. Chrysler and American Motors wrote the finale on that chapter of U.S. automotive history a few years ago.

The peak convertible year was 1965 when 510,693 were built. Although total car sales continue an upward climb, convertible sales have declined every year since 1965, accounting for 72,000 units in 1972.

The last Ford-built convertible was delivered off the assembly line to Floyd Moore, an automobile collector from Chicago.

Tigers playing like pros; Reds threaten in West

American League

United Press International

Bob Miller has been with a lot of teams and when he says the Detroit Tigers are the most "professional" of all, it is time to listen.

"This is a team of professionals," Miller said Thursday night after the Tigers defeated the Cleveland Indians, 7-5, in 11 innings, for their 10th victory in 12 games. "This team plays professional baseball better than any team I've ever been with. They do the little things. I think when it gets down to the end that the little things and the veterans will make the difference."

Miller, a journeyman pitcher who has played with a major league record 10 clubs, is one of the veterans who figures to play an important role in the Tigers' quest for the American League East Division title. Miller, signed as a free agent late last month, posted his second victory since coming to the Tigers Thursday night when he allowed only one hit in 5 1-3 innings of relief.

"I've only been in four World Series, I want to be in one more," said Miller, who became a winner when designated hitter Gates Brown hit a two-run homer in the 11th inning.

In the only other scheduled American League games, Texas defeated Chicago, 7-2, Kansas City outlasted Minnesota, 12-10, and Boston topped New York, 9-4.

The Tigers, who had tied the game at, 5-5, in the sixth inning, pulled out their contest with the Indians in the 11th when Bill Freehan, starting his first game since being beamed eight days ago, singled and Brown unloaded his sixth homer of the season. Frank Howard also had a homer for the Tigers while John Ellis and Buddy Bell connected for Cleveland.

Ken Suarez' two-run single ignited a five-run fourth inning that sparked the Rangers to victory over the White Sox. Sonny Siebert worked seven innings and got credit for the win while Steve Stone was charged with the loss.

Cookie Rojas drove in five runs with a single and a homer to lead the Royals to victory over the Twins. John Mayberry also drove in a pair of runs for Kansas City, boosting his major league leading RBI total to 76. Paul Splittorff worked 6 2-3 innings to gain his 11th victory in 16 decisions.

Carl Yastrzemski collected three hits, including his 11th homer, to lead the Red Sox to their eighth victory in 11 games with the Yankees this season. The loss cut the Yankees' American League East Division lead to 1 1/2 games over the idle Baltimore Orioles. Bill Lee went the distance for Boston to gain his 10th victory in 13 decisions.

National League

United Press International

Dave Concepcion, who entered the season as a part-time shortstop with a .222 lifetime average, collected his ninth game-winning hit of the season Thursday night when he went 5-for-5, including a two-out single in the ninth that gave the Cincinnati Reds a 4-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The performance is putting his manager, Sparky Anderson, on the spot but Anderson couldn't be happier about it.

Concepcion, running second to Chris Speier in the shortstop balloting, would like to be named to the All-Star game for the first time. Since Anderson is managing the team, he'll have to make the choice.

Concepcion chuckles, "I think the manager should go by the voting when he chooses the backup guys."

Anderson said, "the kid is putting a lot of heat on me to make the team. When he went up to the plate for the last time, I told him, 'You get hit No. 5 and you'll really be putting pressure on me.'"

After Concepcion got the hit to score winning pitcher Don Gullett from second, Anderson laughed, "He didn't say anything, he just looked at me and rolled his eyes."

The win moved the fourth place Reds to within six games of the faltering Dodgers, who lost their sixth straight, in the Western Division.

In other games, New York downed Montreal, 7-3, Atlanta topped Houston, 7-4 Pittsburgh edged St. Louis, 3-2, Philadelphia beat Chicago, 7-4, and San Diego blanked Los Angeles, 3-0.

Steve Arlin pitched a two-hitter to give the Padres the victory over the Dodgers. Claude Osteen suffered the loss as his eight-game personal winning streak came to an end. Fred Kendall homered for the Padres.

Steve Carlton struggled on an 11-hitter in Philadelphia's victory over Chicago. The Phils got 13 hits including homers by Greg Luzinski and Bill Robinson.

Richie Hebner drove in three runs with a single and a homer to give Pittsburgh the win over St. Louis. Nelson Briles pitched a seven-hitter for the victory as the Pirates snapped St. Louis' four-game winning streak.

Two ex-Orioles, Roric Harrison and Dave Johnson, paced Atlanta over Houston. Harrison pitched a five-hitter and Johnson hit a three-run homer. The Braves now have three players —Johnson (20), Henry Aaron (21) and Darrell Evans (23)— with 20 or more homers.

Rusty Staub homered in the fourth inning and drove in two runs with a single during the five-run seventh to lead the Mets past Montreal. Tug McGraw, who's been ineffective lately, pitched three innings of two-hit relief for his 11th save.

Wimbledon delay

King, Evert wait on rain

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Wimbledon's fabled luck with the uncertain British weather ran out today when a steady rain forced a delay in the start of the first all-American women's finals since 1957 between Billie Jean King and Chris Evert.

What worried officials as much as the rain was a cloud formation so dense it reduced the light over the tennis grounds to something approaching dusk. More than an hour after the scheduled 9 a.m.

(EDT) start there was no sign of a break.

Mrs. King, Hilton Head, S.C., is gunning for her fifth singles title to break the postwar record of four held by Louis Brough. Miss Evert, runnerup in the French and Italian tournaments, is still after her first major title. At 18 the Fort Lauderdale girl is the youngest finalist since Maureen Connolly in 1952.

Some of the capacity crowd in center court waited 30 hours to get in.

"I'll be honest," said the defending champion, "I want to win it for a fifth time. It will be a great thrill."

Bespectacled Billie Jean will start a slight betting favorite against the 18-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in the first all-American final since 1957.

But the odds would have been longer if fourth-seeded Miss Evert had not given topseeded Margaret Court of Australia one of the beatings of her career, 6-1, 1-6, 6-1 to reach the finals.

On the other hand 29-year-old Billie Jean played below her best in the semifinals, although well enough to beat an erratic Evonne Goolagong of Australia 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

After a cliffhanger that went on until the light was beginning to fade Thursday, Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia made Saturday's men's singles the first Communist country finals in history. The second-seeded Czech beat Britain's fourth-seeded Roger Taylor, 8-9, 9-7, 5-7, 6-4, 7-5.

A's to New Orleans?

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The Oakland A's baseball franchise might be shifted to New Orleans by 1975, Ben Levy, executive director of the New Orleans Superdome, said Thursday.

"I don't mind hinting that the existing world champions will be in the Superdome by 1975," Levy said.

He said Superdome officials have been working with the presidents of the National and American leagues to bring a major league baseball team to New Orleans.

Levy said that with the transfer of the San Diego Padres to Washington, New Orleans was next in line for a franchise.

"Before the Padres moved there were five major league baseball teams in California and they've been eating each other alive," said Levy.

He said competition for fans has been extremely fierce between San Francisco and Oakland.

Local Ruth teams win

The Lompoc Babe Ruth 14-15-year-old All-Stars downed Arroyo Grande 9-0 yesterday afternoon to advance to the semifinals of the seven-team double-elimination Southern Section Tournament at Nipomo.

Lompoc will take on double-winner San Luis Obispo tomorrow morning at 10 a.m.

In the only other game yesterday, the Vandenberg AFB All-Stars stayed alive with a 3-2 win over Nipomo, which drops the host team out of tourney play. Vandenberg plays Paso Robles today at 4 p.m. in an elimination game.

Lompoc rider in 'Motocross Superbowl'

Lompoc's Chuck Czerwinski will be among the sea of expert motocrossers who'll break away from the starting line in a rain of dirt Saturday night in the Superbowl of Motocross in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

After a season dueling California competition at Santa Maria's Spillway Park and other courses, the local leadfoot achieved expert status and qualified for Saturday's big time event in preliminary races in this state, Washington and Arizona.

Out of the 300 riders contending from these states for coveted slots on that final starting line, Czerwinski was one of the 40 who'll be given enough turf to start a bike Saturday night.

After that, it's up to him. The Coliseum course has been engineered for ulcers, with sand fields, drops, mud and water hazards and speed-inviting straightaways.

The first major motocross event to be held in the U.S., the Superbowl will also feature a confrontation between top U.S. and European bikers in a sport long dominated by the Europeans. Bike followers say it will be one of the toughest races over one of the toughest courses any American rider at home has ever challenged.

It'll begin at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

64 par-busters

Goalby's 65 tops GMO

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Bob Goalby, buoyed by a seven-under-par 65 that matched his best round of the year, led a field of par busters by one stroke into the second round of the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open today.

Goalby, who stands 78th on the current money list with a modest $18,936, popped in five birdies and two eagles to lead Buddy Allin, Larry Ziegler and Mike Morley, who turned in 66s.

In all there were 64 subpar rounds Thursday and 19 other golfers equalled par 72 in their quest for the $26,000 top prize.

"I was pleased with my game today," Goalby said, "because I haven't been playing well enough—good enough, I guess, but not well enough to really score."

"I guess this is the first time I ever had two eagles in one round," he said.

Morley, who shot a 77 in the qualifying round played in strong winds was thankful for the gentle breezes Thursday and said "the greens are in excellent shape. His 66 was his lowest round of the year."

Allin, 18th on the money list with $62,766, said he liked the shorter Tripoli Country Club course where the GMO was held last year. He finished in a four-way tie for second in that one.

"But the conditions, the course and the weather were perfect today," he said. "That's what it takes to score well—a good course and those conditions."

Ziegler credited veteran tour pro Doug Ford for bringing his game back to life. He said Ford has been working with his swing since the GMO a year ago and the tutoring "has made all the difference in the world."

Judge rules out girl ballplayers

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Federal Court Judge Barron P. McCune ruled Thursday night that the Avonworth Baseball Conference (ABC) had every right to bar a 10-year-old girl from playing Little League baseball.

"I have serious doubts that the 5th and the 14th Amendments apply to situations of this kind," McCune said. "I doubt if there's any unconstitutional discrimination in this instance or discrimination of any kind, for that matter."

The judge said he based his decision on the fact that baseball is a contact sport and that other legal precedents had guaranteed women equal rights only in such non-contact sports such as golf, tennis and skiing.

The parents of Pamela Magill went to court when the ABC refused to let her play. They alleged she was being discriminated against.

ALL YOU GOT TO DO IS ASK

Murray Olderman

The Tipoff:

The sensationalized drug story involving four NFL stars (I know who they are) actually has no real substance. They're not under current investigation, the revelation was based on a casual conversation with a narcotics agent who's very unhappy about the way his remarks were interpreted. NFL security chief Jack Danahy insists he doesn't know of any pro football involvement in drug traffic. Place to look is pro basketball and the cocaine racket.

Q — I don't understand Duane Thomas and how he could afford to give up pro football. What's the story? — Virginia Lynn, Escondido, Calif.

A — The San Diego Chargers, who got him from Dallas last year, would like to know, too. True, the original three-year contract at $20,000 with the Cowboys had sparked Thomas' weird behavior but the Chargers had changed it to $210,000 for three years. The Chargers also gave him a $13,000 advance and he ran out on them before ever appearing in a game. Ever since Thomas refused to take a physical exam in New England when he was traded briefly to the Patriots in '71, there have been drug rumors (he was convicted on a charge of marijuana possession), but only circumstantially can anything be inferred — he shared a southern California commune a year ago with Don Parish, the Denver Bronco linebacker on probation for possession of cocaine.

Q — I am a high school junior and weigh 185 pounds and want to become a harness racing driver. Am I too big? — Billy Knapp, Buffalo, N.Y.

A — Yes. Years ago, big guys used to straddle the sulks. Willem Geersen weighed 285 and won the Roosevelt International in 1960. Clint Hodgins, a trotting Hall-of-Famer, weighed 200. But no driver among the top 10 on the harness circuit in recent years has weighed over 150. So it depends how much of your 185 is baby fat.

Q — What would you say is the effect of the designated hitter on pitching in the American league this year? — Steve Young, Fresno, Calif.

A — Mostly, it has changed the role of the bullpen flingers. Dick Williams of the Oakland A's says it has hurt his team because the bullpen, strong last year, is no longer a positive factor under the new rule. Chuck Tanner of the Chicago White Sox counters that his relief pitchers stay in the game for much longer stretches now and are therefore more important. I say the reaction to the rule depends on where your team is in the standings.

Q — Don't you think it takes a lot of nerve for Weeb Ewbank to bring Charlie Winner, his son-in-law, to the Jets as the new coach next year? — Joe Damsky, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

A — Walt Michaels might think so. He felt he was going to be Weeb's successor and so quit and went to the Eagles. But in fairness to Charlie, he's a very competent football man who should get credit for pioneering the use of zone defenses in pro ball (when he was Weeb's assistant in Baltimore). And Charlie could have had the Colts' head job this year before choosing the Jets, because he thought New York offered a better opportunity.

Q — What's this about a couple of eye doctors helping the Kansas City Royals become better hitters? — Junior Morgan, Kansas City, Kan.

A — It's true that a couple of California optometrists, William Lee and William Harrison, worked with the Royals the past two springs in what they called optometry sessions. And that the Royals led the American League in team batting last season. But seeing isn't believing when a hitter's in a slump — the docs can't go to bat for them.

Q — Bunch of guys where I hang out were having an argument. Is a golfer really an athlete? I say no after seeing some of those guys with guts hanging over their belts. — Hal Wald, Detroit, Mich.

A — I checked with Arnie Palmer and he said, "I think it's silly to ask the question. Nine out of 10 times a golfer's ability transfers to other sports. I'd have been a football player, one of those straight-up-middle ball carriers. At Wake Forest, Peahead Walker was always after me to come out for football." I also checked with Bob Goalby, who played quarterback at Illinois and has won the Masters. "No," he said, "golfers are not athletes. To me an athlete is a guy who can run and jump and has stamina. These guys are not in shape to do anything but play golf." So you takes your choice.

Q — Why did the San Francisco Giants, who claim they need pitching, trade Sam McDowell? — John Corradi, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A — Manager Charlie Fox, who's known Sam since he was a high school kid, didn't want to get rid of him, though Sam was no ball of fire after they traded for him in '72. Truth is, the Giants wanted to unload his $70,000 salary because even with a winning club they're not pulling people into Candlestick Park.

Parting shot

Next big hustle in sports gambling will be tennis, with marked increase in betting. Should alert money guys who run the sport to set up self-policing before they've got a dump scandal.

Hefty pact for Oilers' Matuszak

HOUSTON (UPI) — John Matuszak, a 6-8, 290-pound defensive tackle who was the No. 1 pick in the pro football draft this year, signed a hefty, four-year contract with the Houston Oilers Thursday and then hustled back to the College All-Star training camp in Chicago.

Matuszak, described alternately as aggressive and mean, said he was well satisfied with the contract his agent, Bob Woolf, negotiated with Oilers General Manager Sid Gillman.

Matuszak didn't reveal the size of the contract, but admitted it wasn't the largest ever paid a lineman in pro history, which Woolf said he wanted at the beginning of negotiations. The largest contract for a lineman in Oilers history and possibly the largest in football was $425,000 paid to defensive tackle George Rice of LSU in 1966.

"Mine isn't that big, but that was during the war and things were different then," Matuszak said, referring to the battle for players between the National and American Leagues.

Golf Tips from the Old Masters

By The Editors of Golf Digest

SNEAD TELLS HOW TO PLAY SIDEHILL LIE WITH BALL ABOVE FEET

A shot that perplexes many golfers is trying to play a sidehill lie when the ball rests above your feet. Sam Snead, one of golf's all-time master players, explains how to play this shot:

"The greatest danger of the sidehill lie with your feet below the ball is that you have a tendency to stand away from the ball and use a baseball swing. Instead of doing this, you should adjust your stance by concentrating your weight on the balls of your feet and toes. If you swing with your weight on your heels, you'll fall away from the shot and either miss it entirely or top the ball.

"Play the ball about mid-way between your feet and choke up a bit on the club. There is a tendency to hook shots from this type of lie, but you can compensate for this easily by aiming slightly to the right of your target."

3. Hitting the Forehand

The forehand stroke is one flowing motion which can be broken down into four components.

The Backswing: The player always starts from the ready position. The right shoulder and arms pivot while the head of the racket is brought slightly up and back. It remains perpendicular to the ground all the way and describes an arc until it points behind you.

The Approach: The left foot is placed forward toward the point of impact, and the left shoulder faces the net. The knees remain slightly bent and the weight rests mostly on the right foot.

The Hit: Now the weight is shifted slowly from the right foot to the left foot, moving the right shoulder toward the net. This shift weight continues through the moment of impact. The ball is hit when it is a little closer to the net than the left foot.

The Follow-through: The body weight is carried further until it rests on the left foot. The right foot serves for balance. The right shoulder follows network with the weight of the body until the arm and racket point toward the top of the opponent's backstop.

Flipper wins

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Stocky Flipper Uehara, 127 ½, Tokyo, suffering a closed right eye and bleeding from a cut just above it, was awarded a ninth round technical knockout over Leoncio Meza, 128, Nexicali, Thursday night when the referee ruled Uehara the victim of a head butt.

Meza opened the cut over Uehara's right eye in the fourth round but it didn't bother the fighter until the eighth. One round later, referee Rudy Jordan stopped the fight, saying Meza had butted Uehara causing the cut to re-open. Uehara, bleeding badly, won his fifth fight without a loss and was awarded his fourth KO.

The 5-foot-7 Meza, tall for a featherweight, suffered his fifth loss in 22 decisions.

Hafey dead

NAPA, Calif. (UPI) — Private services have been held here for Hall of Fame outfielder Charles "Chick" Hafey, who hit .317 during a 13-year career with St. and Cincinnati.

He died in nearby Calistoga Monday at the age of 69. In recent years, he had been in the sheep and cattle business.

The bespectacled Hafey hit .349 to win the National League batting title in 1931 while playing for St. Louis.

But the Cardinals shipped him to Cincinnati in exchange for pitchers Harvey Hendrick and Benney Frey and an undisclosed amount of cash. Neither pitcher did much for the Cards while Hafey hit .344 and .303 the next two seasons at Cincinnati.

No photos!

LONDON (UPI) — There was no love lost when Joe Frazier and George Foreman arrived at London Airport Thursday for flights to New York.

The travelled by separate airlines and refused to be photographed together.

Foreman played checkers in the Pan American VIP lounge while Frazier, in dark glasses, relaxed in the Trans World lounge just 20 paces away.

Foreman said of his No. 1 challenger: "I don't want to be photographed with him. I don't want to be photographed at all. I saw his fight with Joe Bugner and I reckoned Bugner won. Frazier didn't deserve the decision."

Frazier, who won a 12-round verdict over Bugner, just grunted when told Foreman was around and said: "I don't want to be photographed with him."

Transpac lead

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Teacher's Pet III, a homemade 32-foot cutter and the smallest craft in the fleet, reported herself as the apparent leader in the second day of the 27th running of the 2,225-nautical mile Transpacific Yacht race from Los Angeles Harbor to Honolulu Thursday.

Race officials, however, were skeptical whether the cutter— piloted by C.A. Derivas III and making its first ocean run and in the lowest class of the four groups making the race—was actually outdistancing the Class A yachts.

Teacher's Pet was the fleet leader of 60 vessels under the "corrected time" handicap, which allows time allowances for the smaller crafts.

Greek odds

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Oddsmaker Jimmy "the Greek" Snyder has made the Chicago Cubs and the Los Angeles Dodgers of the National League and the New York Yankees and the defending world champion Oakland A's of the American League favorites to win their races.

Although establishing the current division frontrunners at the halfway point of the season Thursday as favorites, Snyder picked a close race in the AL East with New York as 7-5 and Baltimore at 9-5.

The strongest pick was Chicago in the NL East at odds of 1-5.

The odds:
NL East—Chicago, 1-5; Pittsburgh, 6-1; St. Louis, 10-1; Philadelphia, Montreal, New York, 50-1.

NL West—Los Angeles, 2-5; Cincinnati, 6-1; San Francisco, Houston, 8-1; Atlanta 100-1; San Diego 1,000-1.

AL East—New York, 7-5; Baltimore, 9-5; Detroit, Boston, 5-1; Milwaukee, 15-1; Cleveland, 500-1.

AL West—Oakland, 4-5; Minnesota 4-1; California, Chicago, 5-1; Kansas City, 6-1; Texas, 1,000-1.

THINK ABOUT IT!

BY BOB LILLEY

Plans were recently announced for the County's first major winery, to be located in the Los Alamos area. The owners indicate they will be processing their own grapes grown on some 300 acres locally, and grapes of other growers in the vicinity. Plans include a wine testing room and facilities for retail wine sales. Lots of North County acres are going in grapes these days and we wish the vinters luck!

Seed of police state

It was a minor incident and no far-reaching conclusions should be drawn from the unfortunate experience of a demonstrator during a presidential visit to Pekin, Ill., the other day.

First, police and Secret Service agents made the man take his "Impeach Nixon" sign off its pole, then ordered him to remove it from its plywood backing.

When he gave them an argument, they arrested him and, according to a wire service report, hustled him around a corner where an officer clamped metal keys over his mouth, jerking his head back and forcing him to his knees. Then he was handcuffed.

If it was a case of "police brutality," or just the use of somewhat more physical force than might have been necessary, it is not the first time it has happened in this country, or anywhere else, and won't be the last. And after all, presidents have been known to be assassinated during public appearances.

Even if we grant this, however, and even if we dismiss the demonstrator as some sort of kook or troublemaker, there was also the unpleasant sight of a policeman with a rifle shouting from the top of a nearby building: "No pictures!"

What would he have done if some news photographer had taken a picture — shot him?

Yet, the demonstrator in Pekin may have been a kook, just as drug pushers may be "the very vermin of humanity," as Myles J. Ambrose, a federal drug abuse official, said recently in defense of lawmen who have mistakenly broken into homes of innocent citizens and terrorized them on more than one occasion.

But we could do worse than recall a statement attributed to an anti-Nazi martyr whose name at one time was well-known in America:

"In Germany they first came for the Communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me — and by that time no one was left to speak up."

For Communists or Jews or trade unionists, substitute kooks or demonstrators or "vermin." Pastor Martin Niemoller's words strike uncomfortably close to home today.

Can Nixon run country?

WASHINGTON — The issue is no longer who is telling the truth and who is falsifying. The issue is whether President Nixon can govern the country for the next three years.

With the massive evidence accumulating the answer must be in the negative. And it is not alone Watergate. The disclosures about the chiseling on the Nixon private homes at San Clemente and Key Biscayne touch the average citizen struggling to keep up his mortgage payments and maybe fix up his backyard.

The trouble is that under the American presidential system, in contrast to parliamentary government, there are only two ways the office may be vacated. One is by resignation, the other by impeachment.

The process of impeachment would paralyze the government to a far greater extent than the prolonged Senate hearings into the Watergate scandal.

The House must vote articles of impeachment, which would be a lengthy and deeply disruptive process. Then the Senate must sit as a court with the Chief Justice presiding. In this case Chief Justice Warren Burger was appointed by President Nixon, and he would certainly be at odds with the Democratic majority trying the President. Thus a further element of dissension would be injected into what would surely be a fierce conflict enduring for weeks if not months.

Republicans who recoil in horror from the very word impeachment seem to forget that they instituted that proceeding not long ago. Rep. Gerald Ford, minority leader in the House, proposed to impeach Justice William O. Douglas for "high crimes and misdemeanors" and he was joined by 109 other members. Ford asserted that an "impeachable offense" is whatever the House with concurrence of the Senate "considers (it) to be." Seeming to give the Congress unlimited power, this shocked many observers.

The charges against Douglas grew out of private financial dealings while he served on the court. It is one thing, of course, to impeach a judge of the high court and quite another to impeach a president of the United States. At the beginning of the last century articles of impeachment were brought against Justice Samuel Chase who was acquitted by the Senate.

If impeachment is a source of even worse paralysis than presently prevails, the other recourse — resignation — calls for an act of will on the part of the President. No man in the office has ever resigned and the odds on Nixon taking this recourse are put at 70 to 1 or higher even. His friends are saying that it would be contrary to everything in his background and temperament to quit.

What is shocking to this observer is to find influential Democrats on Capitol Hill playing politics as usual. We don't want Nixon to resign, they are saying, for then we would have Spiro Agnew built into the office for three years. With an outpouring of public sympathy and with even moderate good luck he would be entrenched for 1976 and we would have a hard time finding a candidate who could beat him.

The politics of replacing Nixon with Agnew might turn out that way. Whether the Vice President in the President's office, seemingly untouched by the scandals, could govern the country and restore confidence is another matter. The opinion widely held is that the indices, including the New York Stock Exchange, will continue to drop until confidence is restored.

In August 1923, just before a Senate investigation began to reveal the depths of the Teapot Dome scandal, President Warren Gamaliel Harding died. If he had lived he would have been implicated in that scandal by the betrayal of his cronies whom he had appointed to high office. His Attorney General and his Secretary of Interior were deeply involved with payments by big oil men.

The Vice President, Calvin Coolidge, inherited the office Silent Cal, as he was called, had said nothing. Naming able and independent prosecutors, he stood clear of the wreckage. With rising prosperity in what was to become known as the Coolidge boom, he was re-elected in 1924 over a weak candidate picked by the deeply divided Democrats.

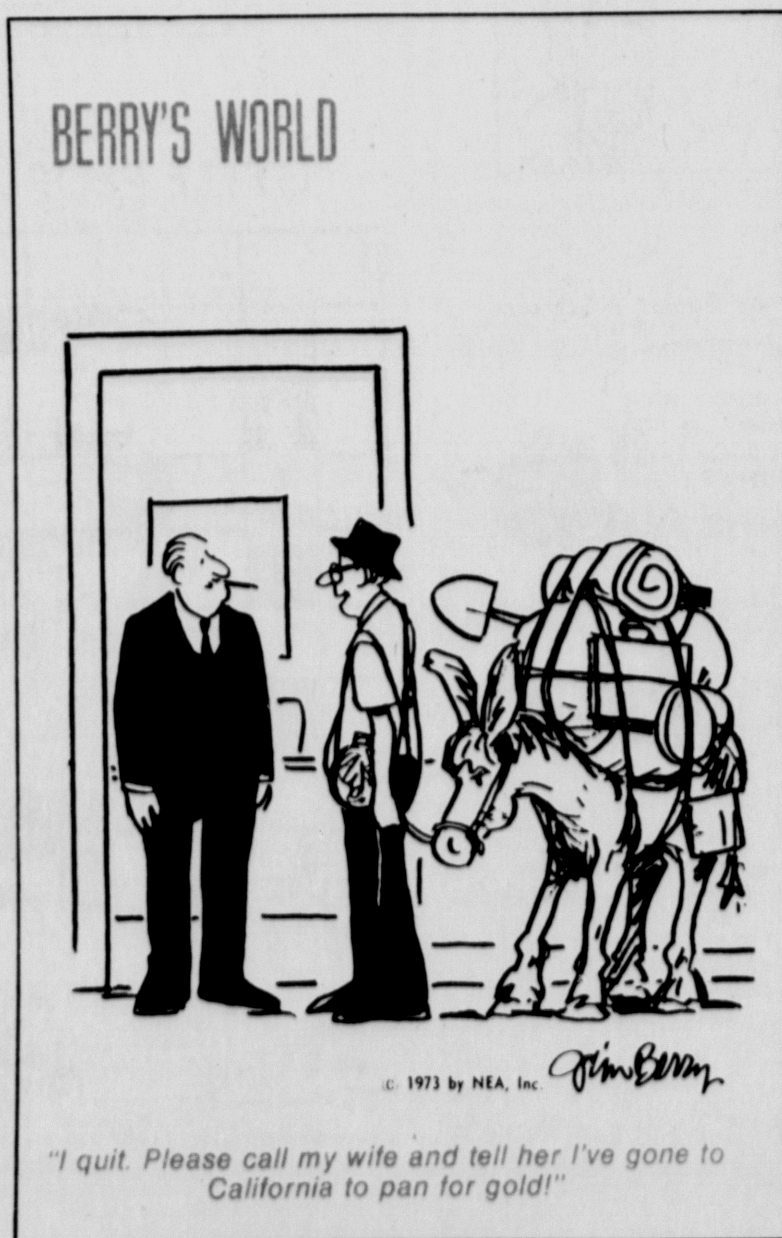

Teapot Dome was essentially a money scandal in comparison to Watergate, which goes to the corruption of the system itself.

Embedded in that corruption is the dark shadow of whether we have a workable government. Walter Lippmann will probably never finish the book on which he has long been working with the tentative title, "The Ungovernability of Man." The present scandal would be at least a chapter.

Radioactive leaks

WASHINGTON — Even among the strongest backers of the commercial nuclear power program in this country, the problem of how to store the hot radioactive wastes is acknowledged as unsolved and potentially very dangerous.

These radioactive wastes, many of which will remain lethally active for tens of thousands of years, are largely deposited in tanks at several central storage facilities. One of these storage depots is located at Richland, Washington and is operated for the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) by the Atlantic Richfield corporation. Since World War II, wastes from nuclear armament production, and more recently, from its nuclear power plants have accumulated there.

On June 8, a major leak of radioactivity from tank 106T at the Richland facility was discovered. AEC officials acknowledged five days later that 115,000 gallons of radioactive waste had leaked from the 400,000 gallons stored in this tank into the soil from the bottom of the tank.

At that time, according to AEC engineer, Dr. J. W. Pollock, the distance between tank 106T, which bottomed 50 feet underground, and the groundwater level below it was not specifically known.

Both Dr. Pollock and Alex Fremling of the AEC's Richland operations office, who is in charge of the investigation of this large leak, have stated that the AEC does not yet know how far into the ground the released radioactive materials have traveled. As has become all too customary, the AEC assures the public that no threat of contamination exists but cannot or refuses to answer critical questions.

The Union of Concerned Scientists (UCS), led by Professor Henry Kendall of MIT, is trying to question

AEC officials to determine the full range of deficiencies in the waste monitoring procedures at Richland. They have learned that subsequent to the discovery of the leak, the AEC asked Atlantic Richfield for "50 or 60" documents but the agency would not disclose the nature of these documents. The scientists also learned that the AEC receives the monitoring reports from its contractor not as taken but only on a quarterly basis, that no automatic alarm system was installed in tank 106T to report liquid level drop and that AEC procedures were probably violated.

Together with the UCS, I have requested replies from the AEC to a number of questions relating to the age and quality of the storage tanks, the extent of other leaks at the Commission's storage waste facilities, the precise nature of the wastes leaked and the ways by which these wastes can be detected and recovered from the earth.

Atomic Energy Commission spokesmen, such as Dr. F. R. Pittman, have agreed with critics of the nuclear power program that no technically or economically acceptable method for long-term waste disposal is yet available.

Moreover, no scientist holds out much hope that these wastes can be detoxified — certainly not in the next several generations. Serious genetic damage, various kinds of cancers and, depending on the massiveness of the dose, fairly sudden fatalities, can occur from exposure to these virulent wastes. For the most part, the potential longer range damage of this silent violence to present and future generations lulls people into a false sense of security. By the time the risks materialize into their human tragedies, it will be too late to do much about them.

As more people learn more about the intractable radioactive waste problem and other risks and costs of the nuclear power plant program, more basic questions are being asked. Instead of continuing to pour billions of taxpayers' and consumers' monies into nuclear fission plants, when will the Congress and the White House begin strong development programs for other forms of energy — from the sun, from geothermal sources, from the wind, from the gassification of coal, etc. — and for ways to reduce the profligate inefficiency of the present energy uses?

Capitol report by Bruce Bioassat

Nixon on safer ground

WASHINGTON (NEA) —

Though expected new Watergate indictments have not yet been handed down and the Senate Ervin committee is just getting to major witnesses, the feeling spreads here that President Nixon is on safer ground than he was a few weeks ago.

Then the notion of his resignation under continuing fire was taking fair hold. The thought was even stirring in the minds of some of the most respected Republican governors, including Michigan's Gov. William Milliken as voiced at the governor's early June meeting at Lake Tahoe.

The resignation prospect is seen today as diminishing. The more drastic, drawn-out procedure of congressional impeachment never has been seriously considered by influential lawmakers, despite polls reporting at least half the American people favor it if it is demonstrated that Mr. Nixon either had prior knowledge of the Watergate 1972 break-in, or took part in the aftermath cover-up.

One important GOP source says: "I was one of those who saw resignation as almost inevitable, with the President unable to cope with the endless, unpredictable barrage. But I think now that he has the situation stabilized."

"If he is still in his job by fall, I think he'll hang on and go the route."

If this appraisal and others like it are correct, the question has to be: What changed the outlook? A considerable body of seasoned Washington politicians and observers of course credit the President's successful wooing to his staff of two old pros, former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird and Bryce Harlow, experienced aide to the late President Eisenhower and to Mr. Nixon himself in the early stages of his regime. There is strong conviction that these two, far more than the evidently disillusioned John Connally, will help get the President back on a good working track and keep him from cracking under the heavy Watergate assaults.

Secondly, Mr. Nixon apparently has had some success, through his fresh attention to the economy and his extended talks here with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, in reestablishing himself as an effectively functioning chief executive.

Third, despite the polling evidence on impeachment, a good many veteran appraisers here think the Ervin hearings are already swamping the American people in confusion. It has become exceedingly difficult for even close watchers of the Watergate scandal to tell who did what to whom. Conflicts in testimony are rampant, and perjury is obvious.

Says one GOP source: "People can't take it all. It's a big, amorphous thing."

"The hearings have become a kind of show. If you look sweet on the stand, you're O.K. Think of Jeb Magruder (former Nixon aide). He's confessed to perjury in the Watergate trial which led to the conviction of seven men. Yet some committee members praised him for his candid testimony. I thought they were going to pass the handkerchief around."

With the big business in the wings, the hearings may or may not take on a continuing, interesting life of their own. However that may be, the view grows here that — even if shown to be involved — Mr. Nixon just may survive it all.
